LOWERING CLOUDS.

A Probable Candidate in the 9th District Against Hon. R. Q. Mills.

For more than a month it has been whispered about that a concerted action was being made to bring out a candidate against Mr. Mills, who should be able to make a strong race, and for the past week or two the name of Col. E. A. Jones has been spoken of in that connection. Yesterday Col. Jones was interviewed by a reporter of the Dallas News, and the following is the reporter's account of what Col. Jones said at the interview. Col. Jones said:

"Personally, I am opposed to Hon. R. Q. Mills, and I will support any deserving candidate who will make the race against him. Mr. Mills is the champion of all that I oppose of latter day, so-called democratic ideas, and I would be pleased to aid in preventing his return to congress. I want, however, to have him defeated by a candidate who would represent principles which I consider correct and truly democratic. The opposition to Mr. Mills had been casting about for a long time for a suitable candidate and one that would draw together all of the elements, and the result of the various deliberations was a communication signed by representative men of all parties and addressed to me and flatteringly naming me as that person and asking me to take the field against Mr. Mills." Here Col. Jones placed his hand upon a stack of letters heaped upon his desk. "These letters," he continued, "have accumulated, addressed to me from all parts of the ninth congressional district, and many of them remain unanswered. They are from prohibitionists, republicans, members of the union labor party and democrats, and they all urge this canvass upon me, but I am waiting. The hour has not come for me to decline or accept. I wish to see my way clearly before I act. I am pleased that The News has sent a correspondent to me and obtained my real views, instead of publishing matter wholly incorrect, as has been done. If I should determine to make the canvass, I desire to come before the people as an independent candidate, and I shall expect to receive the support of every voter, irrespective of party, who desires to secure the defeat of R. Q. Mills. The candidate who can unite the opposing democrats, union labor third party and republicans, can be elected to congress from the ninth district."

It seems from this that Col. Jones is willing to make the race provided he can see in himself the man to focalize the opposition to Mr. Mills, and will do so under the name of ancient Democracy as opposed to what he is pleased to call latter day Democracy. That Col. E. A. Jones is a strong man no Democrat can afford to deny, it is not too much to say that he is the strongest man the opposition could find. He is too good a man to be a victim to a party he cannot serve and to act in opposition to a party in which he could do yeoman service if he chose to enter politics at all. Should Col. Jones become a candidate on an independent ticket it will test the fealty of the Democratic party of the Ninth district and bring to a crucial test the question whether a man can any longer be a Democrat and oppose the Democratic nominee; and it is a question that needs settling.

Blaine, Edmunds, Harrison and the Republican organs are trying to represent to the voters that the business interests of the country have languished during President Cleveland's administration, and especially during the last year, but the New York Commercial Advertiser (Rep.) says: "Everyone knows that this is not so—that while business has been dull in the summer, as it always is, it is now promising well and is becoming hopelessly active, as it was in the preceding season. Statistics tell the story, and trade journals, which are not afflicted with partisanship as a rule, furnish the actual facts in abundance." It shows that the volume of business in iron, steel and building materials is growing steadily.

The New York Sun scoffs at the editors who describe Mr. Cleveland as a "plain, simple man." It says: "It seems funny to have the man who set up that message and fired it off in a clear sky and a dull season described as simple. Where was there ever a political combination or a piece of partisan campaigning that beat the message? It has confounded the Republican statesmen of the senate. And the end is not yet."

The New York World Says the monopoly organs call Judge Thurman a freetrader because he truly says that a tariff is a tax, that a duty is paid by the consumer, and that neither a workingman nor a nation can be taxed into prosperity. Mr. Thurman himself says that so far from being a free-trade measure, the most striking thing about the Mills bill is that it is the most moderate reduction of tariff duties that has ever been attempted in this country."

Sunday Law to be Enforced.

The city court has taken a new, or rather fresh departure, and is going to be a rival with the county court in enforcement of the Sunday law. Several parties were arrested by the police yesterday for alleged violation of the Sunday law the day before, and the Mayor has given express notice to the public that the city ordinance closing saloons on Sunday will be strictly enforced. The city marshal has received strict and imperative instructions to enforce the Sunday closing ordinance, and, on his part, has instructed the police that they must be vigilant in close scrutiny of the saloons on Sunday and indefatigable in arrest of offenders. The fines for violation of the Sunday ordinance are large enough to swamp any profits arising from its violation, and it is probable that the saloons watched at the front door by the county and at the side door by the city will be hermetically sealed, at least, for some time. With the merits of the law, of course, an officer, whether judicial or executive, has nothing to do, the law is on the statute book and among the city ordinances, and the officers seem to consider it their duty to enforce both vigorously.

Sensible.

Not Quite Sure of Himself.

Magistrate (to witness)—You do, solemnly swear, Uncle Rastus, that the evidence that you are about to give shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth? Witness—Yes, yo' honor, but cudent yo' swa' me on a smaller Bible! De size ob dat book, sah, makes de old man nervous. Used it do.—New York Sun.

ALL SORTS.

Miss De Pink—"No, Mr. Suitor, it can never be. I shall never marry a widower. The idea! Catch me walking in any other woman's shoes." Mr. Suitor(departing)—"I had no intention, Miss De Pink, of offering you my late wife's shoes. You couldn't get them on."—Philadelphia Record.

Opening the Campaign: Orator—"And now, gentlemen, that I have explained the damnable objects of the opposition, perhaps our friend in front of me will favor us with a tune on his—Excuse me, sir, what kind of an instrument is that anyway?" Stranger—"I was sent in by the Signal Service to measure the velocity of the wind."—Exchange.

Worthy of His Hire—"You seem to have quite a sum in the bank, Bobby," remarked the visitor. "Yes, said Bobby, "ma gives me ten cents a week for coming to the table with clean hands and face." "Ten cents is a good deal of money for a little boy to earn every week."—"Yes, ma'ma, but I have to do a large amount of work for it."—New York Sun.
